

C3 – Individuals living in low income

Baseline and Trends: Baseline year – 2004/05. Both Before and After Housing Costs, there have been no statistically significant changes between 2004/05 and 2008/09 in the percentage of individuals living in low income in families where at least one member is disabled; there have been statistically significant increases in the percentage of individuals living in low income in families where no one is disabled.

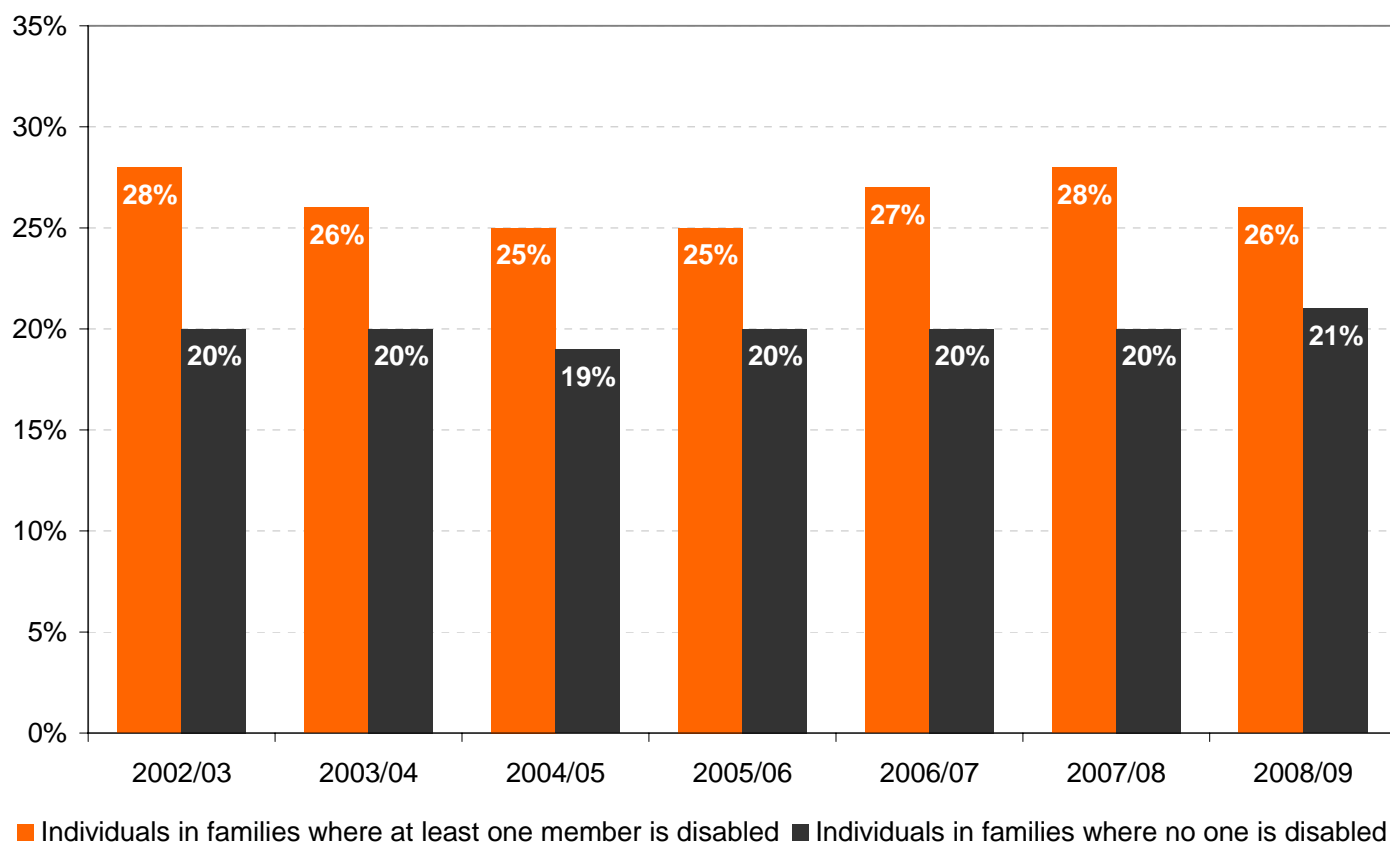

Both Before and After Housing Costs, there has been a statistically significant decrease in the percentage of individuals living in low income in families where at least one member is disabled since 2007/08, compared to no statistically significant change in the percentage of individuals living in low income in families where no member is disabled.

Both Before and After Housing Costs, a higher proportion of individuals living in families with at least one disabled member live in low income, compared to individuals living in families with no disabled members.

Individuals living below 60% median equivalised household income Before Housing Costs

Individuals living below 60% median equivalised household income After Housing Costs

Definition: Disabled people are defined as respondents who report a limiting long standing illness, impairment or disability. Everyone in this group is likely to meet the definition of disability in the Disability Discrimination Act. Data is for United Kingdom.

Data Source: Family Resources Survey 2008/09